I. Background Information

Since June, hot and dry weather has dominated the region creating very high to extreme fire conditions. Fire Indices are at an all time high while fuel moistures are low.

Accompanying the high indices are weather patterns that have set the conditions for lightning and lightning caused starts. High pressure weather patterns over the region are responsible for the high temperatures and little to no moisture. Occasional cold fronts push through the region causing severe lightning storms that ignite wildfires. Rain has accompanied some of these fronts but a return to a high pressure system mitigates any moisture that fell. The weather forecasts project a continuing of the high pressure systems through August and possible into September. The Rocky Mountain Front ERC, a predictor of large fire growth, is setting all time records!

For inquiries regarding contracting fire equipment and other resources have the caller contact their local dispatch center or Geographic Area Coordination Center see: <http://www.fs.fed.us/r1/fire/nrcg/agree-contract/signup.html>.
